

When choosing a short-term rehab, consider the following list of questions or bring them with you on the tour of the facility:

- Do I have time to schedule a visit prior to choosing the short-term rehab facility?
- Do I know people who have used the facility?
- What is the ratio of nurses to patients?
- What are the visiting hours?
- How many times a day will physical therapy and/or occupational therapy be provided?
- Can physical therapy be provided on weekends?
- What does a typical room look like? Will I need to share a room?
- Are there activities and services in the facility, i.e. computer access, religious services?
- What is the facility's rate of re-hospitalizations?
- What does the staff do to educate and prepare the patient and/or family for discharge?
